Subject: RPEA Files Retirement Health Plans Diminishment Lawsuit

Hi Everyone,

I've had some tell me that they can't find the information on the RPEA webpage that I referred in my previous email. All of this was just posted yesterday, so you may need to hit the 'refresh' button on the webpage to update the information that your computer stored the last time you were on the RPEA site. Go to the webpage and look at the top of the page to the far left by the www. address line—there is a circle with an arrow at one end—that is the refresh button. Click on it and the updated info. will load. Then just follow the below steps:

How to find information about the lawsuits and Retiree Health Plans Advisory Board on the RPEA website:

The following link takes you to the RPEA homepage:

<http://www.rpea.apea-aft.org/>

RPEA Retiree Health Plan Diminishment Lawsuit:

1. Along the right side of the home page is a green vertical column called 'Quick Links'
2. Information about the lawsuits is under the 3rd link down called 'RPEA Lawsuits'. Click on it for information about each lawsuit.

Retiree Health Plan Advisory Board:

1. Under the same 'Quick Links' column is a link that will take you to the Retiree Health Plan Advisory Board section. There you can find information concerning the Advisory Board as well as a link at the bottom of that page that will take you to the DRB Advisory Board website which will have meeting information and documents.

Happy Reading!
